Knowledge has never been known to enter the head via an open mouth.

—Doug Larson

Discussion is an exchange of knowledge; an argument an exchange of ignorance.

—Robert Quillen

There is only one good, knowledge, and one evil, ignorance.

—Socrates

A book is a gift you can open again and again.

—Garrison Keillor

Whoever acquires knowledge but does not practice it, is like one who ploughs a field but does not sow it.

—Anonymous

Real knowledge is to know the extent of one's ignorance.

—Confucius

Not to know is bad; not to wish to know is worse.

—African Proverb

Knowing is not enough; we must apply. Willing is not enough; we must do.

—Johann von Goethe

Knowing others is wisdom, knowing yourself is enlightenment.

—Lao Tzu

Knowledge becomes power only when we put it into use.

—Anonymous

No matter how vast your knowledge or how modest, it is your own mind that has to acquire it. It is only with your own knowledge that you can deal. It is only your own knowledge that you can claim to possess or ask others to consider. Your mind is your only judge of truth, and if others dissent from your verdict, reality is the court of final appeal. Nothing but a man's mind can perform that complex, delicate, crucial process of identification which is thinking. Nothing can direct the process but his own judgment. Nothing can direct his judgment but his moral integrity.

—Ayn Rand

Knowledge is happiness, because to have knowledge—broad deep knowledge—is to know true ends from false, and lofty things from low. To know the thoughts and deeds that have marked man's progress is to feel the great heart-throbs of humanity through the centuries; and if one does not feel in these pulsations a heavenward striving, one just indeed be deaf to the harmonies of life.

—Helen Keller
